

AVIVA: EXTRA CARE COVER, AN EXTRA £50,000 ON TOP OF A CI PAYMENT?

Aviva, is an insurance company. Paying claims to your clients is what they do, and they are keen to do the right thing for as many of their customers as possible which is why they want to talk to you about Extra Care Cover.

Extra Care Cover is there in instances where your client might need a little more financial support after a life changing diagnosis is made.

It's an add-on for their advised critical illness policies. For an extra cost each month, they could pay an additional £50,000 if your client fails at least 3 of their activities of daily living. In some circumstance this can pay out up to a year after the initial CI claim has been made.

Extra care cover could also pay out if your client suffers from specified debilitating conditions; recently, they have made some improvements to Extra Care Cover and have raised the maximum age for the named conditions from 50 to 55. They have also increased the number of conditions covered so that they can make sure more clients are taken care of. If the life assured meets their CI definition for one of the eight conditions covered under age 55, they will pay an extra £50,000 at the point of claim.
